

ADVOCATES BOTTLING MILK IN JANESVILLE

MILK PRODUCERS' ASSOCIATION THINKS THIS PROJECT WOULD BE SUCCESSFUL VENTURE.

BOYCOTT THREATENED

Men Beneath the Cow Will, They Say, Cut Off Local Supply Entirely Unless Demand Are Met.

In his opinion of Attorney John L. Fisher, who has affiliated himself with the Janesville Milk Producers' association, the most feasible project this organization can consider is the establishment of a milk bottling plant in Janesville. Mr. Fisher, speaking at the meeting of the producers Saturday evening, presented strong and convincing arguments in favor of a plant of this nature, meanwhile refuting other arguments and opinions regarding plans of other nature to take the surplus supply of milk at present on the hands of the producers daily.

The meeting was the largest of any held thus far. Representatives of the Janesville milk companies were present, Lawrence Cronin of the Cronin Dairy company, Geo. A. Shurtlett of the Shurtlett company, Roy Merrick of the Merrick Dairy company, and Monroe J. E. Humphrey and John E. Kennedy were also there and were called upon by President W. O. Austin for their opinions.

Shurtlett's Proposition.

Mr. Shurtlett gave the producers something to think about when he offered his company's plant to the farmers to take care of their surplus milk, providing they would pay expenses of transportation.

John E. Kennedy announced that he was heartily in favor of the organization and was ready to help it along through any method within his means.

As on the occasion of the meeting of the association Wednesday, President Austin and Vice President Hugh Hemmingway took occasion to make out the Janesville Commercial Club as the source from which conditions pertaining to the milk supply exist. President Austin, long did speeches but when on his feet, did not attempt to refuse or even answer the communication from the chairman of the publicity committee of the Commercial club, which was printed Saturday night, however.

Raps Gazette.

Enthusiastic hand applause greeted both Austin and Hemmingway when their statements touched on actions that would benefit the producers, but on few instances were there any demonstrations when either speaker sought to start something or "to take a shot" at either the Commercial club or the Gazette. For some reason or other the Janesville retail milk dealers were not made the butt of the pseudo jokesters' puns, probably due to the fact that local dairies were fairly well represented at the meeting. There was no official representation of the Commercial club.

Vice President Hemmingway expressed considerable disappointment because the Gazette's Monroe correspondent did not send a news story covering the boost in milk prices at the Borden plant and which were effective yesterday. From what he said it could be inferred that his opinion was that the Gazette was fighting the producers' association and that it depicted any correspondence or wire report of the success of similar organizations elsewhere.

Prices at Monroe.

The announcement in question is from the Monroe Journal and is as follows:

with the superintendent of the Borden plant at Monroe, Wis., report that the following bulletin has been posted on the board at the receiving room at Monroe, Wis.

Notice to Dairymen.

In order to assure those of our dairymen who wish to know the prices which they can obtain at this plant during the next six months, we make the following announcement:

This company will pay for milk delivered at the factory for the six months ending March 31st, 1917, not less than the following prices for milk testing 3.5 per cent butter fat.

October$1.00
November2.10
December2.10
January2.05
February2.00
March1.85

BORDEN CONDENSING CO.

This schedule of prices over the ensuing six months is practically the same as that desired by the association. Mr. Hemmingway in a report to the meeting stated that nearly all retail dealers in the city had agreed to contract for milk at $1.90 per hundred for the coming six months.

To Call on Farmers.

To facilitate securing of the approximate amount of milk produced daily in the vicinity of this city, sixteen members of the association have been delegated to call on each farmer living on his road and to record the number of cows and the average daily production. This information is desired to permit the association to figure just how large a plant will be necessary should they decide to go forward with such a project, or to let them know just how much they can contract to send into Chicago, as they threatened to do, should Janesville retail dealers refuse to give them the price demanded.

When the statement was made that if local dealers did not meet the demands of the organized producers, the milk would be shipped to Chicago, the applause was long and loud.

Whitewater News

Whitewater, Sept. 30.—Judge Jay F. Lyon has been holding court in the city hall the past two days, hearing the evidence in the contest over the will of Catherine Cummings, deceased. Mrs. Cummings died last April at the home of her niece, Mrs. H. Thorne, near Whitewater lake. A week later a will was found leaving all the property, some $6,000, to Della Thorne. The will was signed by C. W. Steele, now dead, and C. E. Thorne. Suit was brought by Dr. J. F. Dunn, the administrator, in behalf of the other heirs, contending that the will was not genuine. Robert C. Bulkeley and J. H. Page appeared for the plaintiffs and George Ferris and J. W. Page of Elkhorn for the defendants. An expert penman claimed the signature was traced. Court was held after supper till 10:30. The next session will be held this afternoon as Judge Lyon was in Milwaukee this morning.

At a meeting the first of the week the band organized for the coming year. Mr. Burdick will continue to act as conductor. Mr. Lange was elected business manager, Harlow Smith secretary and treasurer, Messrs. Cox, Rod and Anderson were appointed as boosting and auditing committee to co-operate with the business manager and secretary.

Mrs. Ray Kidder of Milton Junction visited Mrs. George Brown Wednesday.

Mrs. Emeline Smith is visiting her nephew, Dr. E. S. Hull, at Milton Junction.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Midgley of Chicago have been visiting Mrs. A. E. Midgley and daughters the past week.

Roland Jones went to Chicago Thursday to visit relatives.

Seymour Blount has purchased the Cox store at Hebron and took possession the first of the week.

Mosses Dorr has sold his farm, three miles south of the city, to William Edwards of Malta, Ill.

Mrs. Henry Winn, Mrs. Charles Anderson and Mrs. E. Rod entertained the Royal Neighbors Thursday afternoon at the home of the latter.

Mrs. F. C. Kiser is visiting relatives in Chicago.

The Albert Hanson farm of fifty acres, formerly the Chris' Zeh farm, has been purchased by George Fritz.

WOMEN'S CLUBS WANT SCHOOL BOARD MEMBERSHIP

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 2.—A movement has been started here to have the city charter amended so that the school board may be elected. Either this or that the mayor appoint a woman member of the board of education. The movement is backed by the women clubs of the city and by the educational and charitable organizations.

MATTER OF RIGHT OF WAY OF STREET CAR AND AUTO RESULTS IN AN ACCIDENT

A brand new five passenger automobile and a Janesville Traction company car figured in an accident at the corner of High and Milwaukee streets about two o'clock yesterday afternoon. According to the reports of spectators the driver of the car, a demonstrator named James, was responsible. He drove east on Milwaukee street and desiring to turn north on High street signalled with his arm for the motorman of the approaching car to stop. The trolley car was coming at too fast a speed, however, and hit the machine. The rear, swinging it around a couple of times. The slippery pavement saved it from complete demolition. As it was, the rear wheel was smashed and the body damaged.

SEEK TO CO-OPERATE WITH MILK DEALERS

COMMERCIAL CLUB IS EXERTING EVERY EFFORT TO PROVIDE MARKET, SAYS KUHN.

MUCH PROGRESS MADE

Representatives of Railroad Companies Will Be in City Shortly to Secure Definite Information.

"The Commercial club stands ready and willing to co-operate with the milk producers of Janesville and vicinity in their efforts to provide a market for their surplus supply," declared Secretary P. V. Kuhn today. Mr. Kuhn went on to explain what the Commercial club had already accomplished in the matter, and stated that representatives of the two railroad companies had promised to visit Janesville shortly with the view to looking over the ground with the idea of securing some sort of a plant to handle the excess supply.

"We can gain nothing by working at loggerheads," said Mr. Kuhn, referring to criticism which had been directed at the Commercial club by members of the Milk Producers' association. "It is our purpose to do every possible thing to help the milk producers and we have done much already. The records of our office are open to public inspection and they will show what we have accomplished. As far back as July 1 had correspondence with the milk agents of the railroad companies, calling their attention to the situation existing in Janesville, and I have not lost track of the matter since then. Only recently I have been advised that the railroads will send men here to get data on the amount of milk which can be secured in this territory. One official told me that he had a proposition under consideration which he thought might be located in Janesville."

The matter of a milk market was discussed at the meeting of the Commercial club directors at their weekly meeting today. Sentiment was in accord with what Secretary Kuhn had been going. Efforts will be made to secure more friendly co-operation with the members of the Milk Producers' association.

"The important thing to be considered in this matter," said Mr. Kuhn, "is the exact amount of milk which can be delivered to Janesville. We must have facts and it is up to the producers to get together and furnish the facts in this matter. It is easy enough to make general statements to the effect that 30,000 pounds can be brought in to Janesville daily, but do we actually know that this can be done? In order to locate a concern, we must furnish them with sound, reliable figures."

The best information in the hands of the Commercial club is secured from the annual assessment report for the county, which shows the number of milch cows in the area contiguous to Janesville. These figures show that Janesville city has 187 cows; town of Harmony, 1,768; town of Janesville, 1,178; town of Le Prairie, 1,368, and town of Rock, 1,276. The entire supply of these townships is available for this city. In addition a large part of the supplies of Johnston, with 1,369 milch cows; Fulton, with 1,074, and Bradford, with 1,620, might also be delivered to this city. The fact is also brought out that farmers would undoubtedly be willing to increase the number of cows on their farms in case a suitable market could be provided.

Upwards of 30,000 pounds of milk is said to be a fair daily average as the amount which could be brought into this city. Between 20,000 and 25,000 pounds are disposed of in the present local market leaving a surplus of 60,000 to 65,000 pounds. The question is, can this amount of milk actually be guaranteed. If it can, according to Secretary Kuhn, there will be no trouble in securing some sort of a factory here to take care of the milk. But, Mr. Kuhn insists, the producers must be ready with exact data.

LA FOLLETTE IN NORTH ON SPEAKING TOUR

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Wis., Sept. 2.—Senator La Follette will tour Burnett, Polk and St. Croix counties this week, according to the announcements of Charles H. Crownhart, his campaign manager today. The itinerary includes speeches at Balsam Lake, Grantsburg, Siren and Luck. The latter part of the week will be spent in Polk county.

YOUNGSTERS HAVE LARGE PART IN DAIRY SHOW.

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 2.—A feature in the New England Dairy exhibition, opening here today, is the part taken by boys and girls. They have nearly twenty thousand feet of foot space. Each phase of activity of the adult exhibitors is duplicated by the youngsters. The girls exhibit dairy arts—cooking, preserving, gardening and canning. The girls will listen to lectures on making the home attractive as well as utilitarian. Home attractive as well as utilitarian. Dairy and grain exhibits and will take part in the judgments. Special prizes are provided for best showings by both boys and girls.

BADGER STUDENTS ASPIRE TO BE CAFE WAITERS.

Madison, Oct. 2.—Wisconsin University students, working their way through college, have swamped employment offices with applications for jobs as waiters. More than one hundred and fifty want this kind of work.

POLES DISAPPEARING OFF MAIN STREETS

Traction Company Today Removes Last Remaining Few—Find Building Owners Ready to Co-operate.

Janesville Traction company employees this morning were taking down the few remaining guywires of the street car corporation on Main and Milwaukee streets. Supr. William Murphy stated that owners of buildings in only few instances have refused permission to attach trolley wire guy to the structures. On East Milwaukee street there is but one owner who refuses and aside from a pole which may be necessary in front of this place of business, not a single pole will be necessary from Main to the telephone company corner.

On South Main street buildings many owners have given permission to the company to anchor its guywires on structures. Milwaukee street building owners, in the great majority of cases, have done likewise. The lone grey sentinel at the Myers house corner will be taken out shortly. This was a matter of discussion at the commission meeting of the Janesville Electric company but has not been removed before because it carried the cable of the Postal Telegraph company and a street car trolley wire stay.

Where the street car company finds building owners adverse to attachment of wires neat cast iron poles of the standard type are being placed.

TO ENTERTAIN 25,000 AT MONROE ON CHEESE DAY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Monroe, Wis., Oct. 2.—Monroe, in the heart of the dairy industry of Wisconsin, will celebrate its third annual Cheese day on Tuesday, Oct. 10, when fully 25,000 people are expected to help celebrate.

During the day, the entire square will be roped off, allowing no auto or vehicle traffic of any kind. This will allow the street to be used for a big dance which will start in the evening at five o'clock and last until nine. This feature has been planned for the first time this year and will vie with the Mardi Gras of New Orleans, the Ak Sar Ben of Omaha, or the Semi Am Sed of Des Moines, la. All persons will be in feature costumes.

The greatest feature of the whole day, however, will be the making of a huge Swiss cheese on the public square where everybody can witness the process. One of the huge copper kettles will be installed in a conspicuous place, and an expert cheese-maker from one of the nearby factories will do the work. If the cheese proves to be of the best quality, it will be used during the celebration next year for the free sandwiches which are given away every year.

Another feature of the day will be the huge parade of magnificent circuses with "wild" animals and wagons of extinct breed. The parade will be at least a mile long. Almost every local merchant will have a float of some sort.

Three bands will be here for the big day—the Monroe Hussar band, the Orangeville band and the Freeport band. If the weather proves good, a record-breaking crowd is expected.

COMMON LAW WEDDINGS INCREASE IN DANE COUNTY

Madison, Wis., Oct. 2.—The common law marriages—popularly known here as ten-cent marriages—are on the increase in Dane county. Twelve contracts have already been filed this year.

PICNIC COMMITTEE WANTS ACCEPTANCES

Committee Asks That All Who Intend Going to Picnic Notify Commercial Club at Once.

With the date for the big picnic to be given by the Janesville Commercial club less than a week off, the committee in charge finds that a fairly definite knowledge of the number who intend to be present at the affair is necessary to perfect the arrangements. Especially is this true in the case of the transportation; a large number of men have volunteered to lend their automobiles for the occasion, but many more will be needed and the number of people to whom transportation will have to be furnished must be in the hands of those in charge of the transportation facilities at once.

A large number of invitations were sent out to all the youths who participated in the various contests for whom the return card on which the boy was asked to state whether his family would accompany him. The committee is desirous of having all of these cards returned with the necessary information as soon as possible. Also they would appreciate a line from anyone who contemplates attending the picnic, apprising them of this fact. The invitation is an open one. It is by no means limited to those who are connected with the contest, but is rather a community affair in which it is hoped people from every part of the county will intermingling. The acceptances are not an obligation, but merely an aid to those in charge in helping them complete the arrangements.

H. S. GIRLS HOLDING THEIR FASHION SHOW

Seventh Veil Waists, Ankle Enemy Skirts and Whitewashed Shoes Not on the Program.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 2.—A group of pretty Milwaukee high school girls ranging from 13 to 18 years, staged a style show here today, which was conspicuous by the absence of silk waists, mothers and fathers of the girls, together with those who were unable to get into the show as models, sat in judgment. A second performance of the show may be given tomorrow, if today's is successful.

"Simplicity" is the slogan of the high school girl style setters.

Miss Florence Van Vleet, public school teacher, is one of the prime movers in the movement. Mrs. Victor L. Berger, also has shown a great interest.

"We do not think the girl should be dressed in uniforms or unattractively, but I think if a number of mothers knew the heartaches of the girls who must dress plainly and dressed in silks and laces, they would dress their children differently," said Miss Van Vleet. "The girl in the middie blouse and plaited skirts does not realize she is better dressed. She only thinks how better dressed the other girl is."

"I would not favor making the girls comply to a set rule in design and color," said Mrs. Berger, who is visiting her cousin, Miss Cynthia Gould. Mark Shumay was up from Milton between trains Friday evening.

LIMA

Lima, Sept. 30.—Mrs. Asa Anderson of Janesville spent Thursday with her cousin, Miss Carter, who is visiting her cousin, Miss Cynthia Gould.

Mark Shumay was up from Milton between trains Friday evening.

F. W. Persons moved from Mrs. Fred Gould's house, vacated by S. F. Gould on Saturday, and Charles McLean will move into the house vacated by Mr. Persons on Monday.

The W. C. T. U. met with Miss Eric Arman on Friday.

Orta Gould fell on a slippery walk in Whitewater on Wednesday evening and is laid up with a sprained ankle.

Miss Ella Elmhich of Whitewater was an over Sunday guest of her nephew, Will Herrington, and family.

to the clarification of thinking and the formation of right purposes in matters of this kind.

At a dinner in the Waldorf Astoria on March 18, 1907, Dr. Woodrow Wilson spoke as follows:

We spoke too exclusively of the capitalist class. There is another as formidable an enemy to equality and freedom of opportunity as it is, and that is the class formed by the labor organizations and leaders of the country.

These sentiments of Mr. Wilson are not new. They are opposed to the views held by us and practiced by Collier's for more than thirty-three years. We reprint them here because they have an important bearing on the question whether the democratic administration, in what it did during the last week in August, was actuated by sincerity of lifelong conviction.

GROWING YOUNGER.

The Toronto Globe tells about the experience of a Canadian who wanted to enlist under the colors, and the mistake he made in his application. A well-known textile union official who is on a recruiting committee tells a story of a man aged forty-four years, who was anxious to join the army.

"At the recruiting office he put his foot in it by telling his true age, and was rejected."

"Going to the union man, he complained of the red tape ideas that kept him out of the army."

"Well," said his adviser, "go back and say you made a mistake and that your real age is thirty-six."

"Away went the would-be soldier, and putting on a bold front, told the recruiter he was only thirty-six years of age."

"And why on earth did you say you were forty-four?" asked the sergeant.

"Oh, you see," stammered the man, "I got a bit mixed. It's my mother is forty-four."

The automobile on the farm has come more to encourage good roads building than all the laws that were ever passed. The farmer no longer stands at his gate and envies the tourist as he whizzes by in a cloud of dust. He is too busy kicking up a dust himself. As a result the roads of Rock county, as well as every other county, are being placed in good shape.

The automobile, in the county represent an investment of half a million dollars or more. They are about as good as a bond issue, when it comes to building roads, with no kick coming on account of taxes.

Result of six straw votes in the Herald's presidential poll give Hughes 422 and Wilson 387, of a total of 809 votes. Hughes of Vermont, Nickel and Gross, piano manufacturers, who are mostly of German birth or descent, give Hughes 104 and Wilson only 19 votes. Broad street curb market declared a preference for Hughes by 141 to 72.

The labor demonstration at Detroit, the other day, when Candidate Hughes was addressing a Monday meeting at a factory, indicates that there was a well developed colored brother in the wood-pile, during the late unpleasantness at Washington.

President Wilson says that society demands an eight hour day, whatever that means, but the fact remains that the public demands service, which the transportation companies are expected to furnish, regardless of expense or annoyance.

The man whose knowledge of a payroll is confined to one envelope, is not very competent to tell the railroad how to run their business.

To him she is the dearest girl in the world, and she will probably turn out to be just that, provided she acquires a taste for a lot of things that she never had at home, and most of them do.

Every bride expects to jump from coldish to lobster in a Newburg when she gets married and is disappointed if she lands only half way.

Thank my lucky stars I am still a bachelor. I can have a nickel for car fare.

I had these things in mind, and thought I would jot them down for the column. Can anybody refute them? Not on your life.

Yours sincerely,
A. T.

Being a married man and still happy about the bride of ten years ago, we cannot resist this opportunity to call A. T. a poor fish. As there are ladies present, we cannot make it any stronger. We will be glad to publish any replies to A. T. which may find their way to our desk.

The President.
The cares of his job are upon him; He's weighted with trouble and strife; Confronted by perplexing problems, Which harass a president's life. It looks mighty fine from a distance To be a great man of the hour; To sit in the seat of the mighty, And wield indisputable power.

But the men who cut wood in the forest, Or labor deep down in the mine, Have jobs that for peace and contentment are worth a president's shine.

All jobs presidential outshine. The night brings repose to the farmer, The millhand, the teamster, the clerk; But there's nothing in sight now for Woodrow.

But worry, dull care and hard work.

An Impressionist.
If I were an artist, I would paint her Just as I saw it last night; Its perfect contour I would trace, With its delicate pink and white. But, oh, what artist could paint her face.

As she painted it last night?

ROAD EXPENDITURES SHOW BIG INCREASE THROUGHOUT NATION

Mileage of Surfaced Roads Extended at Rate of 16,000 Yearly.—$232,000,000 Spent in 1915.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2.—Rapid increase in total expenditures for roads and bridges, growth of building and construction, and a sharp decrease in the proportion of contributions in the form of statute labor mark the development of highway work in the United States during the past twelve years. These facts are brought out by statistics for the calendar year 1915 recently compiled by the office of public roads and engineering of the United States department of agriculture.

More Surfaced Roads.
The total length of public roads in the United States outside the limits of incorporated towns and cities was 1,161,000 miles on January 1, 1916. Of this, about 277,000 miles, or 11.3 per cent, were improved with some form of surfacing. The mileage of surfaced roads in the United States was 232,000 miles in 1915, an increase at the rate of about 16,000 miles a year, and in 1915 approximately one-half of this increase was made under the supervision of state highway departments. In addition these departments supervised the maintenance of nearly 52,000 miles of main and trunk line roads.

The increase in expenditures for road and bridge work in the United States has been from approximately $30,000,000 per year in 1904 to about $232,000,000 in 1915, an increase of more than 700 per cent. The expenditure of state funds during this same period increased from about $2,500,000 to more than $55,000,000. In addition, more than $27,000,000 of local funds was spent under state supervision in 1915, bringing the total road and bridge expenditures managed by the state to $82,500,000. This amount is greater than the total expenditures for roads and bridges from all sources in 1904.

State Supervision Effective.
The growth in importance of the state highway departments has been rapid. The first of these agencies was created in 1891 in New Jersey and now some form of highway department exists in every state except Indiana, South Carolina and Texas. Since their inception these departments have expended to January 1, 1916, an aggregate of $265,450,825 in state funds for road and bridge construction, maintenance, and administration. They had constructed over 50,000 miles of roads in co-operation with the states. More than 40,000 miles of these roads were surfaced.

The falling off in the value of road work performed by statute and convict labor was from $20,000,000 in 1904 when the total road expenditures were $30,000,000, to about $15,000,000 in 1915 when the total expenditures had grown to $232,000,000. This was a reduction from 25 per cent of the total in the former year to less than 5 1/2 per cent of the total in 1915.

An increase in the use of better and more expensive types of roads also is shown by the recently compiled statistics. This development has been due in large part to the great increase in automobile traffic. It is estimated that there are now approximately 2 1/2 million automobiles in use on the roads of the country, or one car for every mile of road. This present motor traffic is in excess of that of all sorts twelve years ago.

Average Expenditures.
The cash road and bridge expenditures of the United States average only $22 per mile of rural roads in 1904. In 1915 this average had grown to $109 per mile. New Jersey led all other states both in 1904 and in 1915 with $221 and $475 per mile respectively. Nevada made the least expenditure in both years—$3.72 per mile in 1904 and $7 per mile in 1915.

Footprints in the upper air.

Just as Daggie O'Nails, professional cracksmen, was creeping out of No. 13 Hardiuck Terrace, the owner of the house grasped his shoulder.

"Don't shoot, give up!" cried Daggie hoarsely.

"I only desire to put a question to you," said Odden Ends, the middle hand, "for it was he who told me to know this: if a thief is busily engaged playing his trade up in an attic, could he be truthfully said to be above doing wrong actions?"

Daggie O'Nails gazed at him with open mouth.

"In default of an answer to that," went on Odden Ends, "perhaps you won't mind telling me something not to direct connected with your trade. Why are all fed soldiers like bridle speeches?"

"Lookit here, cull," began the cracksmen dazedly.

"Because they are short o' rations. See, short."

But with one masterly shove, O'Nails had pushed him down the garden wall.

"Well, you chucked Odden Ends, and dropped peacefully off to sleep."

BIG TURK FORCE

AFTER HARDSHIPS

IN DESERT, BEATEN

Expedition Sets Out to Establish Base for Capture of Canal, But British Trap Is Success.

Romani, Egypt, Oct. 2.—Unique features of warfare were developed, according to military men, in the recent battle of Romani, in which the British defeated the Turks. The invaders losing some 9,000 in dead, wounded and prisoners out of their total of approximately 14,000 men, as has been told in cable advice. The crossing of the Sinai desert with big guns and other war equipment during the heat of summer was an unprecedented achievement. A representative of the Associated Press who was permitted to travel over the entire battle ground after the conflict had been told previously by high military authorities that the feat could not be accomplished and that any force sitting along the Suez Canal would be safe from attack throughout the summer. One of the few dissenters, however, was Lieutenant-General Sir Archibald Murray, commander-in-chief of the British forces in Egypt. Immediately upon his assumption of command here last January he began to prepare for just such an attack, and the victory at Romani was due to his foresight.

The Turkish expedition undoubtedly was elaborated by German officers who laid elaborate plans for the advance from the direction of El Arish, a Turkish post on the northern coast, ninety miles from the canal. About half this distance is through a waterless desert and at this time of the year the heat is intolerable. It would be impossible for men to march for in these sands one sinks to the ankles at every step, and horses are not fitted for work of this kind. The only means of transporting troops and supplies was on camels and this was the method employed. About fourteen thousand of these beasts were used.

Unable to carry the heavy gun carriages through the loose, deep sands, the Turks constructed roads by digging small parallel trenches which would fit the carriage wheels, and filling these tracks with the scrubby plants which represented the only vegetable life outside the oases. These wiry plants formed a cushion over which sand was thrown, making a very practicable road for the guns. In some places where the sand was too loose and deep for the tracks, planks were laid lengthwise under the wheels.

Progress was necessarily slow and long before the Turks reached the watered positions which they took up some miles in front of Romani, and the British were ready and waiting for them. The defenders did not at all lack for the plan to draw the invaders on to an assault if possible. Frank Harwood, Appleton, will be General Murray decided that he toastmaster.

GRIMM GRANTS THREE DECREEES OF DIVORCE

After Twenty-One Years Wed Janesville Woman Finds That Her Husband Is Cruel to Her.

Augusta Dobson of this city, charging cruelty and proving the charges to the satisfaction of Judge Grimm, was awarded an absolute divorce circuit court this morning. Mrs. Dobson was awarded the custody of the minor children, there being six by marriage, five of whom are affected by the decree. She also got ten dollars per month alimony. The Dobson were married March 28, 1895.

George W. Jenkins, who is a Beloit painter and a machanic, charged his wife, Jessie, with desertion. They were married May 19, 1913 at Beloit, and separated June 8, 1914. Judge Grimm freed him.

FARMER BUSY; COURT TERM IS POSTPONED

Upon the petition of the Rock County Bar association to accompany the action of Judge Grimm, the court ordered that the October term be postponed until December fourth. The jury will be summoned to appear on December 5th at two o'clock P. M.

The action of Judge Grimm met with instant approval from the agriculturists who are extremely busy at this time.

The Bar association, solicited by the farmers, presented the petition to the court this morning when the term was originally scheduled to open.

STATE DENTISTS TO MEET IN JANESVILLE

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE DECIDES IN FAVOR OF THIS CITY FOR 1917 GATHERING.

PLAN BIG CONVENTION

Will Mean Delegation of More Than 400 Members of State Association in City for a Week.

Janesville will be the convention city for the Wisconsin State Dentists' association Jan. 1917, according to a decision on Saturday of the executive committee of the organization, in whose hands was left the matter of choosing the first city for the gathering. Three cities had placed bids for the honors, Madison and Sheboygan being in the field besides Janesville.

A telegram received Saturday evening by J. M. Holsapple brought the news that the Janesville delegation's invitation, presented at the convention in Milwaukee last July, had been accepted. The message indicated that the selection of this city was made only after a prolonged debate in which the merits of all three cities were thoroughly discussed.

The convention will bring four hundred or more dentists to Janesville next July. Their sessions will continue for nearly a week, and the gathering will be one of real importance. The state association usually secures some of the best men in the profession as speakers, clinics are conducted, and social features, including banquets and receptions, have a prominent place in the program. The association will have charge of the speakers and the local dentists will take care of the entertainment features. The Janesville men are enthusiastic over their success and will begin at once planning for the event.

"I have reason to believe that Milwaukee will send over twenty automobile loads of dentists to attend the session," said a local dentist today. "It was given that assurance last July by the Milwaukee men in case Janesville was successful. We will have a big attendance and we will make it a big week for Janesville."

The first time in over twenty years that the state dentists' meeting has been held in this city. The tendency of late has been to have all the meetings in Milwaukee.

NEW CIGAR STORE OPENED SATURDAY

Beautiful Headquarters of Wisconsin Cigar Company in Jackson Block Pleasing to Patrons and Visitors.

Messrs. Smith and Beal struck a keynote when they opened their new retail cigar store in the Jackson block, No. 5 North Main street, Saturday. The store is a place of beauty, with a new truck with extras, and a harmoniously blended give it an atmosphere foreign to many cigar stores. On the opening day over 1,000 cigars were given to the masses of the ladies.

While this retail store will be their headquarters in this city, it will be a place where the ladies will find a variety of goods. Messrs. Smith and Beal, who expect to do a very large wholesale tobacconist business in cigars and candies over a large territory in southern Wisconsin, have located here exceptionally well. It should prove a good find.

Both Mr. Smith and Mr. Beal have been in the cigar business for a number of years with the American Tobacco company and other large concerns and the benefit of their knowledge and experience will be given over to their business in Janesville.

CLASSES ELECT OFFICERS AT LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL

With the election of officers by the sophomore class at the Janesville high school this morning, the organization of the three upper classes is completed. The classes are to hold a party, and also to hold one joint party with some other class. To make arrangements for these functions and to outline the policies of the classes are the duties of the committees who have the actual management of the affairs in hand.

The first of these class functions was a Freshman reception given by the senior class on the afternoon of October 20 in the gymnasium. Early this week the sophomores will make a similar reception, and the juniors will also order their class pins, which will be chosen by the pin committee.

There follows a list of the class officers:

The freshman class does not organize.

BUSINESS IS ACTIVE WITH PRICES HIGHER

is good, both jobbers and retailers moving their merchandise and complaining of shortage in certain lines. Fear of a merchandise famine has caused in some speculative cases, but this is by no means general and the situation appears sound at present owing to the employment of labor and the high prices of grain and livestock.

Furniture.—This business continues quite active in spite of the increased prices. Labor is difficult to obtain and collections vary with local conditions.

Grain Markets.—Demand for all kinds of grain continues and a good foreign demand for corn is anticipated. The car shortage delays shipments to terminals and also shipments from terminals. Farmers are receiving good value for their produce.

Groceries.—Reports from this district show a healthy condition with a considerable volume of merchandise moving at good prices. Higher values are looked for, particularly in connection with vegetables and fruits, but the consumer appears to be in a position to pay the difference, and collections are good.

Hardware.—Trade is maintained at a high level in spite of increased prices, nor is any falling off anticipated for some months. Higher values are looking for, particularly in connection with vegetables and fruits, but the consumer appears to be in a position to pay the difference, and collections are good.

Lumber.—Prices are firm but sales are decreasing in some centers during August. Railroads and car manufacturers are taking up their immediate needs. The high cost of building material has been a normal condition, but country sections which have held off are beginning to come into the market. Up to date there has been no indication of a stronger demand for the balance of the year. Mahogany is at a high price due to the exportation of freight rates, and the quotations are a handicap to volume sales.

Mail Order.—This industry is still engaged in distributing a large volume of goods. The condition is satisfactory.

Planes.—Manufacturers are finding some difficulty in securing the necessary raw materials. Sales, however, continue to hold up well, with the demand in certain instances ahead of the supply.

Ships.—General activity is evidenced in this industry and construction work is planned as far ahead as 1917. The business is anticipated for several years, due to the tonnage destroyed in the war and the United States naval construction program.

Wool and Woolens.—Wool is still held at good prices and manufacturers are using foreign wools which they claim are cheaper. There is some indication that a demand for the domestic article will develop as mills are fully occupied, and England has placed an embargo on wool. In some instances retailers of woolen goods appear to be overbought, but with a good demand these stocks may liquidate themselves. Business for spring delivery will be at advanced prices and conservative buyers are beginning to notice the effect of Japanese competition, which produces merchandise at labor prices that cannot be approached in this country. Collections are good.

Clearings in Chicago for the first twenty-one days of September were $1,181,000,000, being $2,000,000 more than the corresponding twenty-one days in September, 1915. Clearings reported by twenty cities in the district outside of Chicago amounted to $228,000,000 for the first fifteen days of September, 1916, as compared with $168,000,000 for the first fifteen days of September, 1915. Deposits in member banks in Chicago were $672,000,000 at the close of business September 21, 1916, and loans were $445,000,000. Deposits show an increase of approximately $6,000,000 over last month.

REPORT ON HIGHWAY FOR JONES FACTORY

Commercial Club Committee Makes Favorable Report on Situation at Directors' Meeting.

The report of the special committee of the Commercial club, appointed to arrange with Arthur G. Jones, proprietor of the Jones factory, who made at today's meeting by Chairman Geo. S. Parker, of the Commercial club, is a growing industry as one of its institutions and the Commercial club is to be commended for its effort in keeping the plant in the city.

At present Mr. Jones has 137 employees and expects to add more as fast as his new buildings are completed.

The directors expected to have Zeno M. Host, a building and loan association man, of Milwaukee, with them today, but he failed to come and to hasten about some immediate action in the building and loan matter President Craig appointed a special committee consisting of Geo. S. Parker, C. P. Lovejoy, A. C. Jones, C. P. Cullen, to investigate and present a plan at next week's meeting; they held a meeting at 7:30 this evening in the Commercial club offices.

On the Madison road, this side of Leyden, they ran into a drive of pigs that came out suddenly from the bushes and ran across the road, and killed three of them. The farmer immediately came and stopped them, and insisted on their being taken to his home. The ladies were quite indignant when they found on their arrival here that they had the right of way on a public highway, and instead of the pigs they wished to delay on their journey they let it drop. They said they would not forget their trip through Wisconsin, right away.

NOT ALL JOY FOR WOMEN MOTORISTS

Two Cleveland, Ohio, Ladies on Trip to Madison Experience Hold-up at Kenosha and "Near Robbery" at Leyden.

Mrs. C. Nicholson and daughter, Clara of Cleveland, Ohio, were in the city on Saturday. They were driving a high-powered 1917 Packard roadster and were on their way to Madison when they were held up by a man who was a student at the university.

The ladies have a quick escape. The man who held them up tried to hold them up. When they refused to stop the car the robbers threw sticks in the road and drove over them.

is good, both jobbers and retailers moving their merchandise and complaining of shortage in certain lines. Fear of a merchandise famine has caused in some speculative cases, but this is by no means general and the situation appears sound at present owing to the employment of labor and the high prices of grain and livestock.

Furniture.—This business continues quite active in spite of the increased prices. Labor is difficult to obtain and collections vary with local conditions.

Grain Markets.—Demand for all kinds of grain continues and a good foreign demand for corn is anticipated. The car shortage delays shipments to terminals and also shipments from terminals. Farmers are receiving good value for their produce.

Groceries.—Reports from this district show a healthy condition with a considerable volume of merchandise moving at good prices. Higher values are looked for, particularly in connection with vegetables and fruits, but the consumer appears to be in a position to pay the difference, and collections are good.

Hardware.—Trade is maintained at a high level in spite of increased prices, nor is any falling off anticipated for some months. Higher values are looking for, particularly in connection with vegetables and fruits, but the consumer appears to be in a position to pay the difference, and collections are good.

Lumber.—Prices are firm but sales are decreasing in some centers during August. Railroads and car manufacturers are taking up their immediate needs. The high cost of building material has been a normal condition, but country sections which have held off are beginning to come into the market. Up to date there has been no indication of a stronger demand for the balance of the year. Mahogany is at a high price due to the exportation of freight rates, and the quotations are a handicap to volume sales.

Mail Order.—This industry is still engaged in distributing a large volume of goods. The condition is satisfactory.

Planes.—Manufacturers are finding some difficulty in securing the necessary raw materials. Sales, however, continue to hold up well, with the demand in certain instances ahead of the supply.

Ships.—General activity is evidenced in this industry and construction work is planned as far ahead as 1917. The business is anticipated for several years, due to the tonnage destroyed in the war and the United States naval construction program.

Wool and Woolens.—Wool is still held at good prices and manufacturers are using foreign wools which they claim are cheaper. There is some indication that a demand for the domestic article will develop as mills are fully occupied, and England has placed an embargo on wool. In some instances retailers of woolen goods appear to be overbought, but with a good demand these stocks may liquidate themselves. Business for spring delivery will be at advanced prices and conservative buyers are beginning to notice the effect of Japanese competition, which produces merchandise at labor prices that cannot be approached in this country. Collections are good.

and makes for reliability

You want a furnace that possesses a reserve heating capacity for emergencies in zero weather.

You want a furnace that will operate satisfactorily under any and all natural conditions.

You are not, presumably, a judge of iron and other metals, but you know you want a furnace made properly and of the best materials.

You are not an expert in combustion and principles of heating and fuel consumption, but you want the furnace that you install in your home to successfully pass such an inspection.

When you select a "Garland" you can be assured of all those and many other items being exactly as they should be.

The "Garland" Policy of Assurance, issued to you personally, guarantees the quality and workmanship and performance of your "Garland." And the largest makers of heating and cooking appliances in the world, The Michigan Stove Company, stand back of that policy. Could you ask for a better assurance of the wisdom of selecting a "Garland" Furnace for your home?

EDGERTON HIGH TAKES NORTH DIVISION INTO CAMP

Edgerton, Oct. 2.—Edgerton high school football team, in the second game of the season, defeated the North Division high school team of Milwaukee by a score of 14 to 6, in one of the fastest and cleanest games of football ever seen at the local driving park, Saturday afternoon. Out of the fact that the Edgerton team has not as yet developed an interference, it plays a very satisfactory brand of football. Every man used in the Edgerton lineup, played good football. Individually, Rolfe Williams, Edgerton's shifty halfback, assisted by Ogden and Clark, performed in spectacular fashion.

Simmons started for Milwaukee, and in general merit the teams were evenly matched. Milwaukee was first to score, when Simmons received a forward pass after crossing the line. Snyder, Milwaukee's quarter, showed excellent judgment on this play, as the Edgerton defense was all bunched for a line smash. Milwaukee then failed to kick goal.

Edgerton soon came back and carried the ball down the field on line plays until Williams wormed his way through center for twenty-five yards to a touchdown. Practically every player on the Milwaukee team made an attempt to get him, but with whirling and dodging he evaded them all. The posts, Rossebo then kicked goal, and the half ended. Score: Edgerton 7, Milwaukee 6.

Owing to the fact that the Milwaukee boys were to leave on the 4:41 train, the third quarter was cut to six minutes and the fourth to seven minutes. No scoring was done in the third quarter. At the start of the final period, Milwaukee had the ball on Edgerton's fifteen yard line. After executing a good gain, Milwaukee was thrown back by Clark for a fifteen yard loss. Milwaukee then lost the ball on an incomplete forward pass. The ball was put into play on the twenty yard line and Edgerton plowed down the field with line plays and short over-scrumage-line forward passes until Williams wound up with another run through the entire Milwaukee aggregation for fifteen yards to the second touchdown again between the posts. Rossebo again kicked goal. Score, Edgerton 14, Milwaukee 6.

After kickoff Snyder made a fine run of about thirty yards behind splendid interference. A long forward pass brought the ball to Edgerton's ten yard line, where it was lost on an intercepted forward pass. Curran of Edgerton receiving the ball. Time was called. Score, Edgerton 14, Milwaukee 6.

Team Runs Away.
A team of horses hitched to a hay rack and belonging to H. O. Smith, back became frightened Saturday afternoon and ran away, making a dash up the main street. The team was left standing in front of the Conn store, and started from that point. When they reached the center of the next block the wagon skidded into every rig that was hitched in the street was damaged to some extent. When the frightened team reached Albion street the collision with a buggy in which Mrs. Grant Chamberlain and Miss Gladys Anderson were sitting. These two ladies were thrown out of their rig to the pavement. Mr. Chamberlain sustained a bruised hip and Miss Anderson fortunately escaped injury. As the streets were crowded at this time of the day, it is considered fortunate that some serious accidents did not occur.

Movie Firm Sub-SEA SEIZED BY BRITISH

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
New York, Oct. 2.—A wireless message from H. H. Van Loan, a passenger boarded for Nassau on the steamer "The Bahamas" has been seized by a British warship patrolling in the vicinity of the Bahamas islands has seized a submarine owned by a moving picture company written on its way from New York to Miami, Fla., on the belief it was a German craft. The submarine was off the Abaco Islands in tow of a yacht when it was captured Tuesday.

The yacht and submarine, the message says, were to return to Nassau when the British officials took control of the submarine and warned Mr. Van Loan and he was permitted to leave on the Monterey, which is due here today. The message states that the American consul is taking the matter up with the state department at Washington to obtain the release of the property submarine.

NEWS NOTES—MOVIELAND

by DAISY DEAN

Prince Tonio and Fluffy are the roles taken by Harry B. Warner and Dorothy Dalton, respectively, in "The Vagabond Prince," Warner's fifth screen starring vehicle. The prince is a young nobleman, who comes to America for adventure and falls for Fluffy, a dance hall girl, after numerous adventures, many of which take place in an atmosphere of San Francisco's celebrated Barbary coast. Warner has a reputation as a boxer, which he upholds in this film when he fights Charles K. French and another good-sized actor. Warner's rain of blows kept the two men alive, and on their toes during the making of the fight scene. One of the very unusual scenes shown in this which was made when an accident happened shows most of the cast gathered about to celebrate the wedding of the principals with a liquor feast. In the midst of the scene, an extra girl tapped the plug of a beer, and the explosion that followed gives a genuine rainstorm scene.

OTERO TO MAKE PICTURE.
Mme. Otero, world-famed Spanish dancer, has finally consented to appear in a photo play, according to information from Paris. She has received countless offers, but turned down all but the one made by a Parisian film concern.

The strange part of it is that Madame Otero isn't holding out for a fabulous sum of money. The offers she rejected included figures resembling the national debt set down on paper. The thing she wanted was a scenario with an artistic atmosphere. The concern submitted one called "La Vie de la Belle Otero," and the dancer was captured, all for the sum of $50,000 francs.

Just what "La Vie de la Belle Otero" is all about has not been announced. It is known, however, that scenes will be made in Madrid, Barcelona, Seville and other well known Spanish cities.

DO YOU LIKE THE COUSIN EMBRACE?
Practically all film plays, as the reader may have noticed, end with a clutch and kiss.

It's presumable that a great many persons like this sweet end of a scene, however, have come to regard it as a thing to be avoided, as one would avoid sugar on one's breakfast chops.

H. B. Warner.

One earnest gentleman has formed the habit of getting up hurriedly in a movie theater and dashing out when he sees that the picture is nearing its close and that a kiss with the hero and heroine in close embrace impends.

He writes, voicing his protest: "The last time," he says, "the kiss came when I wasn't expecting it, and when I tried to get out I fell over a seat and nearly broke my leg."

It is told that charming little Mabel Normand with her own hands painted the vines that wind in wild profusion upon the lattice wall inclosing the big open air stage in her own studio in the Hollywood hills.

WINNERS CLOSE ENGAGEMENT HERE

Popular Stock Company Finish Week's Engagement on Sunday Night—Here Again Next Season.

NEW MYERS THEATRE.

If advance reports are true, local theatre-goers are to see a musical comedy that is different when "The Floppers" appears here at the New Myers theatre on Tuesday night, Oct. 3rd. It is reported to contain enough of a plot to keep one interested with-out taking the mind off the smart dances and brilliant song hits that form so important a feature of this big musical melange. More than a score of tuneful, finely sung hits are heard, each one a gem of melody. The production comes under the direction of Frederick Herendeen, who has provided a handsome scenic equipment and a cast of musical comedy entertainers of national reputation. A chorus of beautiful girls who not only please the eye but the ear as well, forms a handsome background for the comedy. It behooves local playgoers to make their seat reservations early if they do not want to be disappointed, for every indication points to the fact that "The Floppers" will pack 'em in on its forthcoming engagement here.

Bear Brand Yarn

Nothing in the past has equalled the present keen and widespread interest in knitting and crocheting. Everywhere needleworkers are producing beautiful articles of personal and household adornment. Complete success, however, depends so much upon the selection of the right yarn.

The greatest difficulties encountered by women who knit and crochet are in choosing the yarn to be used for each piece of work. In the selection of yarn too much stress cannot be laid upon choosing a good yarn, one that is pure in quality.

BEAR BRAND YARNS stand unequalled in quality, in coloring, in elasticity, in durability and in their beautiful appearance after they are worked up.

Bear Brand Yarns, suitable for entirely different kinds of work are: Bear Brand Shetland Floss, Bear Brand Saxony Yarn, Bear Brand Germantown Zephyr, Bear Brand German Knitting. Ask for Bear Brand Yarns. YARN SECTION, SOUTH ROOM.

Sew-on-O-gram

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl sixteen years of age. I am a high school girl and every one thinks I am very pretty. I have dark brown eyes and hair the same color. My complexion is pretty fair. I am the right height, but I am thin. I am taking ordinary and I wish to have a good stage appearance. Can you tell me of anything I can do to improve my weight? I am very straight and have a high chest, but it does not suit me. Some people think I am about the right weight and others do not. Please tell me how to gain weight.

(2) Is there a chance of my getting into the navy? I am very quick and jolly and have also had some moving picture experience. I want to go to sea this fall and I sure had great success. A GREAT FRIEND.

(1) To gain flesh, take plenty of olive oil, eat eggs, butter, cereals and fatty broths, potatoes, beans, corn, carrots, and parsnips, figs, dates, nuts, bananas, underdone beef, steak and roast beef. Drink plenty of milk, cream and cocoa.

(2) Avoid food that will not digest easily, and be careful to masticate thoroughly what you do eat. Give up pickles, vinegar and all acids.

(3) Exercise freely in the open air, and take plenty of sleep.

(4) Don't fret or worry; this will keep you thin more than anything else. Cultivate an easy-going disposition; if you possibly can.

(5) There is chance for anyone to get into the movies if she has ability. It is a work I would not recommend, however, because the life is so hard. Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) My finger nails are brittle and break very easily. How can I have nice nails?

(2) Do you approve of dancing for young girls? I am fifteen.

(3) When I powder it leaves my face rough. What causes it?

(4) Do you think ring games are nice? I do not like them and will not let the boys kiss me, but I cannot make them stop putting their arms around me. All the other girls allow it and so they think I should. How can I make them stop?

(5) I received a letter from a boy whom I almost hate. He says he is coming back here again. Should I not if he comes? All the girls tease me about him, though they know I hate him.

(6) May I write again? E. D.

(1) Rub your finger nails with vaseline or sweet almond oil every night before going to bed. Keep the cuticle pushed back with an orange stick, and file the nails instead of cutting them.

(2) I do not approve of dancing for young girls unless they go to dancing parties in the afternoon.

(3) Powder is drying to your skin. I think you are too young to use it.

(4) Kissing and ring games are decidedly bad taste. Show your good taste by staying away from the parties where they are played.

(5) Don't answer his letter, since you dislike him so much, and when he comes be too busy to see him.

(6) Yes, indeed.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am eighteen years old. I have a very bad habit of talking too much and I do not always say nice things. I have a very dear boy friend who often does little things I do not like. I have talked about his faults to my friends and what I said got back to him and he is very much hurt. I am certainly sorry, because I value his friendship very much. What shall I do?

Write the boy a note and tell him how sorry you are. Say that you want him to know that you regret the loss of his friendship, but that you feel you deserve to lose it.

In reply to C. G.: I did not receive your letter concerning the widow.

The doctor had to tell the truth, and the father cried aloud. It was a pitiable thing, that meeting. The father rightly felt that he had neglected the boy's education. But most fathers are like that. They don't act until it is too late. They don't know how to act and somehow they won't take the trouble to find out.

Well, in a few days the outlook became so serious that the boy's mother was almost summoned to the bedside. She never knew. It would have been cruel to tell her. He died in her arms. And he was her only boy.

That is just one instance out of thousands. The ending is not always so swift, but it is always as sure as time. Too late the father realizes his responsibility. And the mother never knows. Why should she know?

The boy was a victim of ignorance. The ignorance was his father's fault. His father himself was ignorant when he was a lad, perhaps, but by good luck, and only by good luck, he escaped what the boy could not escape. Yet the mother was partly to blame, if she acquiesced in the boy's smoking. From cigarettes to beer was almost inevitable. It may be preposterous. But we are not biased against tobacco. We just think boys should not smoke. It never does them any good.

Before the boy goes away to school, fathers, see to it that he knows such truths as he should know. You are to blame if he is ignorant of sexual hygiene. If you don't know how to teach him, if you don't feel competent to do it, send him to your family physician for a little plain talk. A boy may be a "wise one," but nevertheless it is possible for a doctor to teach him something which will be a godsend to his future welfare and happiness.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

In chronic catarrh of the nose and throat transmissible to a person occupying a bed with the patient? Or to persons thinking from the same cause of catching the same bow?

ANSWER.—Depends altogether on what all the patient. To say "catarrh" is to confuse the nature of the disease. There are various diseases which masquerade under that title, such as tuberculosis and syphilis, which are certainly transmissible in the ways mentioned.

In the ways mentioned, the diseases with the pneumococcus and allied germs, which may be mildly contagious. On general hygienic principles, never sleep with another person, as for the common wash basin, I personally believe they are not responsible for any considerable spread of disease. At any rate, shake hands with an invalid or sit and talk with him.

Household Hints

SWEET POTATO DISHES.

Escalloped Sweet Potatoes—Dice fine four good-sized sweet potatoes. Pare, core and slice into half-inch rounds for one pint or more as potatoes. Butter baking pan; place layer of sweet potatoes first, season to suit (use plenty of butter), then a layer of apples, spread with butter. Plan to have last layer of apples. Place lumps of butter on top. Bake one hour. This recipe will serve six grownups and is delicious.

Sweet Potatoes Au Gratin—Wash and pare six large sweet potatoes; pare and cut in cubes. Prepare a brown sauce, using one small onion, one tablespoon each of flour and butter, half teaspoon salt, dash of grated nutmeg and paprika and a few drops of kitchen bouquet; thin with a cup of rich brown stock, seasoning with a little lemon juice. Arrange potatoes and sauce in alternate layers in baking dish, covering top first with grated cheese; then with browned bread crumbs; cook fifteen minutes.

Sweet Potato Souffle—Oil and mash a quart of sweet potatoes, adding a little melted butter, half teaspoon salt, half teaspoon sugar and a dash of white pepper. Beat with silver fork until very light, then add yolks of two well-beaten eggs. When mixture has cooled, but not hardened, fold in whites of eggs, beaten to a stiff froth. Turn immediately into souffle dish, placed in a pan of hot water, and bake in a quick oven for twenty minutes.

Sweet Potato Cream Toast—Rice a quart of boiled sweet potatoes, add a little melted butter and half teaspoon salt; mix lightly together so as not to mar the rice potatoes. Heap upon rounds of hot buttered toast, covering each slice with tablespoon of stiffly beaten white of egg which has been whipped with a little salt and to which has been added a tablespoon of chopped mushrooms. Brown quickly in hot oven and serve.

Sweet Potato Sandwiches—Mash with a wooden spoon eight boiled sweet potatoes, adding half cup of cream, tablespoon of butter and a dash of salt and pepper, then whip with a fork until very light and stir in a cup of chopped hickory nuts and half cup grated coconut. Spread between thinly buttered slices of graham bread.

Sweet Potato Hash—Dice cold boiled sweet potatoes, adding a little chopped onion, two tablespoons minced cold-boiled salt pork, tablespoon of chopped celery and sufficient cream sauce to moisten slightly; season with salt and pepper. Turn into hot frying pan with tablespoon of melted butter and cook until well browned on under side.

Scalloped Sweet Potatoes—Boil potatoes without peeling until half done. Scrape or skin while they are hot and leave them to get cold. Then cut round into slices almost half an inch thick and arrange in buttered baking dish, alternating with butter and little sugar (a teaspoon to the layer) between them. When dish is filled in this order, pour in a cupful of boiling water in which a tablespoon of butter has been melted. Cover with fine bread crumbs. Cook slowly covered for half hour, until brown.

CANNING AND PRESERVING.

Maryland Chow-Chow—Chop fine two large heads cabbage, one quart onions, six green peppers, two red peppers. Sprinkle with salt and let stand over night. Drain off one pound brown sugar to two quarts vinegar, one tablespoon celery seed, half cup white mustard seed; let come to a boil and pour over the pickle. Put in crock and cover closely with cloth. Good in a few days.

Elderberry Jam—One peck cleaned ripe elderberries, five pounds sugar, one pint vinegar. Boil until thick, put in stone jars. Will keep without sealing.

Cold Sliced Pickle—One hundred three or four-inch "cukes," half their bulk in onions about the size of an English walnut, one pint olive oil, one-half cup white mustard seed, one-third cup celery seed, one-half cup pickling spice. Peel onions, wash "cukes" and put in brine that will bear up an egg, over night. In morning drain and slice both, put layer of each in bottom of crock and sprinkle celery, mustard seed and olive oil over it. Proceed until all is used. Lay one-half dozen stalks of horse-radish roots on top, cover with cold vinegar. Press down with plate.

YOUNG AT FORTY-SEVEN

"Habit is either the best of servants or the worst of masters."

To have brought four children into the world, brought them up carefully, done practically all the work of a wife, and withal, to have exercised for twenty years of married life that unremitting oversight of small expenses which is the price of saving on limited means—that is enough to make any woman look old at forty-seven.

In our neighborhood is a woman whose life is described by the paragraph. And she is the freest, youngest looking woman of her age in the whole neighborhood.

Her Secret Is An Open One.

She laughed at first and disclaimed any. Then she added more seriously: "Yes, I have one little custom that after I get my noon dishes done, no matter how much work I still have to do, I lie down and sleep for fifteen minutes. I can't tell you how much it refreshes me. I don't think I could get along without that nap. That's all the secret I have. You can try it if you like."

"I'd like it all right," said the woman, "but I simply couldn't rest until all my work was done."

"And I simply couldn't get to sleep in that time," said another. "She Couldn't Do It At First."

"I couldn't at first," said the woman who is young at forty-seven, "but I cultivated the habit until I could do it. That's what a good habit has done for a woman."

There is so much said, it seems to me, about the danger of bad habits and too little about the value of good habits. A treasure that will last a lifetime.

It is stored away in a place where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, nor thieves break through and steal. You may draw interest on it any day in the year.

Sir Walter Scott Was Grateful.

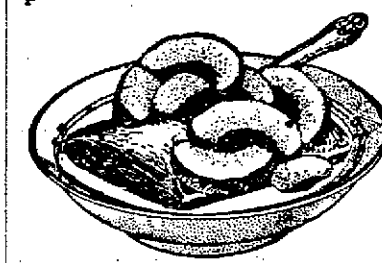

Sir Walter Scott spent the best years of his youth in the routine of a law office. It would seem to us that that was precious time wasted. But Scott says it was the habit of industry which he acquired, which enabled him to turn out so many thousands of words a day in later life, when, in the cause of honor, he performed tasks which ordinary men would have called impossible.

Charlotte Bronte was brought up by a strict aunt, who kept her at household tasks when she wanted to be writing. Yet Charlotte speaks gratefully of the habits of order which her aunt thereby inculcated. "A good habit is a path of least resistance worn in the right direction."

We have good reason to be grateful to ourselves or to anyone else who has helped us beat out such a path.

"The cure?" she asked, smiling. "I like the sound of that medicine."

"Yes," he said, "that's a man's name when he allowed his wife to work so hard that she got a cold. I'll run down; then she was liable to contract any disease. The only way to keep well, we know is to keep the system toned up. Morris followed his man into the kitchen."

"Does he propose to have me go away and leave my family?" Because it is far simpler than that. You are to spend one day every month in bed."

"Yes, we will take a day that I am at home, and you simply stay in bed and let us get along the best way we can alone," he said.

GINGLES' JINGLES

A GRUDGE.

Don't carry a grudge, you're a mut if you do, such stuff from your midst by all means you must shoo, it can't help your case and puts you on the blink, to tote evil thoughts against any gazing, creates in yourself an unpleasant unrest, puts you to the bad, sticks around like a pest, persists and upsets 'till you're in for it right—until you must either fix matters or fight. A grudge is a mighty unpleasant side kick and makes you a slave, if permitted to stick, spoils all of the peace and the blessings of life, interferes with your chance to win out in the strife. So give it the gate, don't allow it to stick, get rid of your grudge 'fore it has you down sick, go straight to the party that you so dislike, slap him on the back and say, "lookit here Mike, I think you have wronged me, perhaps you have not, well talk the thing over, but we won't get hot." A thousand to one you will both soon agree, and then from your grudge and your hatred you're free.

St. Paul, Oct. 2.—Three hundred and fifty-four retired Minnesota school teachers today got their first pension from the state fund. Minnesota is one of thirty-three states in the union now pensioning their teachers.

That doctor must be a wonder to be able to say such things to Morris and not offend him.

"He is so ready to take offense if any one finds the least fault with him."

"Now tomorrow you get everything ready for our meals and write out the things you want me to do, so I won't have to disturb you by asking questions, and Sunday I will sleep out and leave you to rest and sleep all you want to." Morris was quite enthusiastic about the scheme.

"I shall have to bathe the baby surely. You can't do that." The extent of Morris' preparations began to worry Marian.

Morris looked puzzled. "I don't believe I could manage that. You could put on your bathrobe and as soon as he was bathed go back to bed. It would not take long, would it?" Marian looked relieved.

"No, it is not a very long job."

Marian made the mush for breakfast in the wireless cooker and had a hot roast dinner all cooked.

The Lone Star Ranger

A Romance of the Border
by ZANE GREYAuthor of
"THE LIGHT OF WESTERN STARS"
"RIDERS OF THE PURPLE SAGE," ETC.

Copyright by Harcourt and Brothers

"No Sneaker," he said, "Ranger, what'll you do with him?" Lawson queried, as if uncertain, now the capture was made.

"I'll see to that," replied Duane, and he pushed Sneaker in front of him out into the court.

Duane had suddenly conceived the idea of taking Sneaker before Mayor Longstreth in the court.

When Duane arrived at the hall where court was held there were other men there, a dozen or more, and all seemed excited; evidently, news of Duane had preceded him. Longstreth sat at a table on a platform. Near him sat a thick-set grizzled man, with deep eyes, and this was Hanaford Owens, county judge. To the right stood a tall, angular, yellow-faced fellow with a drooping sandy mustache. Conspicuous on his vest was a large silver shield. This was Goshon, one of Longstreth's sheriffs. There were four other men whom Duane knew by sight, several faces were familiar, and half a dozen strangers, all dusty horsemen.

Longstreth pounded hard on the table to be heard. Mayor or not, he was unable at once to quell the excitement. Gradually, however, it subsided, and from the last few utterances before quiet was restored Duane gathered that he had intruded upon some kind of a meeting in the hall.

"What'll you break in here for," demanded Longstreth.

"Isn't this the court? Aren't you the mayor of Fairdale?" interrogated Duane. His voice was clear and loud, almost piercing.

"Yes," replied Longstreth. Like that he seemed, yet Duane felt his intense interest.

"I've arrested a criminal," said Duane.

"Arrested a criminal?" ejaculated Longstreth. "You? Who are you?"

"I'm a ranger," replied Duane. A significant silence ensued.

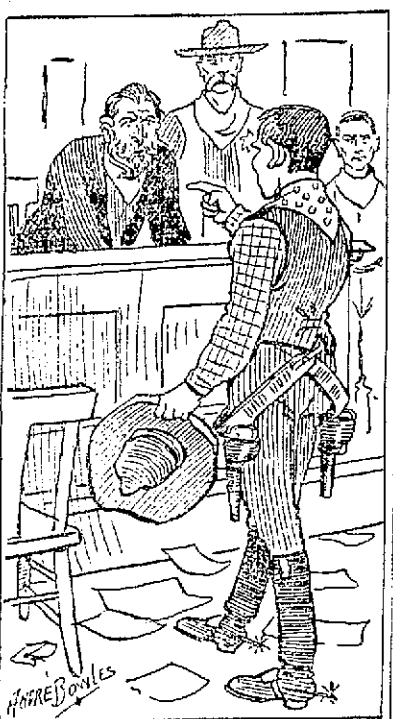

"I charge Sneaker with assault on Laramie and attempted robbery—if not murder. He's had a shady past here, as this court will know if it keeps a record."

"What's this I hear about you, Bo? Get up and speak for yourself," said Longstreth, gruffly.

Sneaker got up, not without a turtling glance at Duane, and he had shuffled forward a few steps toward the mayor. He had an evil front, but not the boldness even of a ruster.

"If ain't so, Longstreth," he began, loudly. "I want in Laramie's place for grub. Some fellow I never seen before come in from the hall an' hit

Laramie an' wrenched him off the floor. Then this big ranger chased me an' fetched me here. I didn't do nothing. This ranger's hankerin' to arrest somebody. That's my

"That's a lie, Longstreth."

Longstreth said something in an undertone to Judge Owens, and that worthy nodded his great bushy head.

"Be, you're discharged," said Longstreth, bluntly. "Now the rest of you clear out of here."

He absolutely ignored the ranger. That was his rebuff to Duane—his slap in the face to an interfering ranger service. If Longstreth was crooked he certainly had magnificent nerve. Duane almost decided he was above suspicion. But his nonchalance, his air of finality, his authoritative assurance—these to Duane's keen and practised eyes were in significant contrast to a certain tenseness of line about the mouth and a slow paling of his olive skin.

Then the prisoner, Sneaker, with a cough that broke the spell of silence, shuffled a couple of steps toward the door.

"Hold on!" called Duane. The call halted Sneaker, as if it had been a bullet.

"Longstreth, I saw Sneaker attack Laramie," said Duane, his voice still ringing. "What has the court to say to that?"

"The court has this to say. West of the Pecos we'll not aid any ranger service. We don't want you out here. Fairdale doesn't need you."

"That's a lie, Longstreth," retorted Duane. "I've letters from Fairdale citizens all begging for ranger service."

Longstreth turned white. The veins corded at his temples. He appeared about to burst into rage. He was at a loss for quick reply.

Floyd Lawson rushed in and up to the table. The blood showed black and thick in his face; his utterance was incoherent, his uncontrollable outbreak of temper seemed out of all proportion to any cause he should reasonably have had for anger. Long-streth shoved him back with a curse and a warning glare.

"Where's your warrant to arrest Sneaker?" shouted Longstreth.

"I don't need warrants to make arrests. Longstreth, you're ignorant of the power of Texas Rangers."

"You'll come none of your damned ranger stunts out here. I'll block you."

That passionate reply of Longstreth's was the signal Duane had been waiting for. He had hoped on the crisis. He wanted to force Longstreth's hand and show the town his stand.

Duane backed clear of everybody. "Men! I call on you all," cried Duane, piercingly. "I call on you to witness the arrest of a criminal prevented by Longstreth, mayor of Fairdale. It will be recorded in the report to the Adjutant-General at Austin. Longstreth, you'll never prevent another arrest."

Longstreth sat white with working jaw.

"Longstreth," said Duane, in a voice that carried far and held those who heard. "Any honest citizen of Fairdale can now see what's plain. In the two years you've been mayor you've never arrested one ruster. Strange when Fairdale's a nest for rustlers! You've never sent a prisoner to Del Rio, let alone to Austin. You have no jail. There have been nine murders during your office—innumerable street-fights and hold-ups. Not one arrest! There have been lawsuits in your court—suits over water-rights, cattle deals, property lines. Strange how in these lawsuits you or Lawson or other men close to you were always involved! Strange how it seems the law was stretched to favor your interest!"

Duane paused in his cold, ringing speech. In the silence, both outside and inside the hall, could be heard the deep breathing of agitated men. Longstreth was indeed a study. Yet did he betray anything but rage at this interloper.

"Longstreth, here's plain talk for you and Fairdale," went on Duane. "I don't accuse you and your court of dishonesty. I say strange! Law here has been a farce. The motive behind all this laxity isn't plain to me—yet. But I call your hand!"

CHAPTER XVIII.

Duane left the hall, elbowed his way through the crowd, and went down the street. He was certain that on the faces of some men he had seen ill-concealed wonder and satisfaction. He had struck some kind of a hot trail, and he meant to see where it led.

It was by no means unlikely that Chesebrough might be at the other end. Duane controlled a mounting eagerness. But ever and anon it was shot through with a remembrance of Ray Longstreth. He suspected her father of being not what he pretended. He was troubled.

Upon returning to the inn he found Laramie there, apparently none the worse for his injury.

"How are you, Laramie?" he asked. "That was a good crack Sneaker gave you."

"I ain't accusin' Bo," remonstrated Laramie, with eyes that made Duane thoughtful.

"Well, I accuse him. I caught him—look him to Longstreth's court. But they let him go."

Laramie appeared to be agitated by this intimation of friendship.

"See here, Laramie," went on Duane, "in some parts of Texas it's policy to be close-mouthed. Policy and health-preserving! Between ourselves, I want you to know I lean on your side of the fence."

Laramie gave a quick start. Presently Duane turned and frankly met his gaze. He had startled Laramie out of his habitual set taciturnity; but even as he looked the light that might have been amaze and joy faded out of his face, leaving it the same old mask. Still Duane had seen enough. Like a bloodhound he had a scent.

"Talking about work, Laramie, who'd you say Sneaker worked for?"

"When he works at all, which sure ain't often, he rides for Longstreth."

"Humph! Seems to me that Longstreth's the whole circus round Fairdale. I was surprised to hear some one say Longstreth owned the Hope So joint."

"He owns considerable property hereabouts," replied Laramie, constrainedly.

"Humph again! Laramie, like every other fellow I met in this town, you're afraid to open your trap about Longstreth. Get me straight, Laramie. For cause I'd throw a gun on him just as quick as on any ruster in Pecos."

"Talk's cheap," replied Laramie, making light of his bluster, but the red was deeper in his face.

"Sure. I know that," Duane said.

"And usually I don't talk. Then it's not well known that Longstreth owns the Hope So?"

"Reckon it's known in Pecos, all right. But Longstreth's name isn't connected with the Hope So. Blandy runs the place."

"That Blandy. His fare game's crooked, or I'm a loosed bronch. That Hope So place ought to be run by a good fellow like you, Laramie."

"Thanks," replied he; and Duane imagined his voice a little husky. "Didn't you hear I used to—run it? I built the place, owned it for eleven years."

"Well, I'll be doggoned." It was indeed Duane's turn to be surprised, and with the surprise came a glimmering. "I'm sorry you're not there now. Did you sell out?"

"No. Just lost the place."

Laramie was bursting for relief now—to talk, to tell. Sympathy had made him soft. "It was two years ago—two years last March," he went on. "I was in a big cattle deal with Longstreth. We got the stock—an' my share, eighteen hundred head, was rustled off. I owed Longstreth. He pressed me. It came to a lawsuit—an' I was ruined."

It hurt Duane to look at Laramie. He was white, and tears rolled down his cheeks. Duane saw the bitterness, the defeat, the agony of the man. But the reason he did not openly accuse Longstreth, the secret of his reticence and fear—these Duane thought best to try to learn at some later time.

"Hard luck! It certainly was tough," Duane said. "But you're a good loser. And the wheel turns! Now, Laramie, here's what. I need your advice. I've got a little money. But before I lose it I want to invest some. Buy some stock, or buy an interest in some rancher's herd. Sure you must know a couple of men above suspicion."

"Thank God I do," he replied, feelingly. "Frank Morton an' Si Zimmer, my friends an' neighbors all my prosperous days, an' friends still. You can gamble on Frank an' Si. But if you want advice from me—don't invest money in stock now."

"Why?"

Mrs. Will Finley entertained friends from Beloit for the week end.

Mrs. Frank Pratt and son Harold of Belvidere are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Hallett.

A number of the neighbors of Fred Tuttle, Afton road, and friends from Manchester joined in making up a "bee" and harvested Mr. Tuttle's tobacco the first of the week.

Mr. Tuttle had been sick and the kindly work of his friends was greatly appreciated.

Edith and Ethel Campbell entertained a number of their young friends Friday evening at their home on the Afton road. A pleasant evening, with games and music, was closed with the serving of supper. The following were present: Frank and Caesar Westby, Kathleen and Ted Day, Madeline Martin, Ernest Schumacher, Myrtle and Raymond Simpson, Clara McCure, Archie and Harry Shaw, Hazel, Helen and Alberta Coughlin.

Value of Learning.
Learning, if rightly applied, makes a young man thinking, attentive, industrious, confident, and wary; and an old man cheerful and useful. It is an ornament in prosperity, a refuge in adversity, an entertainment at all times; it cheers in solitude, and gives moderation and wisdom in all circumstances.—Palmer.

---and the Worst Is Yet to Come

Dinner Stories

It was a baseball game in the middle of the street—against the law. There was a rush, a scramble, and the policeman had captured a small boy who looked much the worse for wear.

"Now," said the policeman, who wasn't at all a bad sort, "which shall it be—a licking or a summons?"

Little Jimmy Taylor was very ill and his companions living in the same street in Fall River had been asked not to make any noise. Next morning the invalid's mother received a visit from one of the lads.

"How is he today?" he inquired in a shy whisper.

"He's better, thank you, my dear. What a thoughtful child you are to come and ask."

The boy stood hesitating for a moment with his eyes lowered. "I'm awful sorry Jimmy's ill," he added.

Mrs. Taylor was touched. She bent down and kissed him.

Emboldened by the caress, the youthful caller looked up. "If Jimmy should die," he asked, "can I have his baseball bat?"

A teacher had been doing her best to instill into the minds of her class the meaning of the word desert.

"So, you see, children, a desert is a great place where nothing will grow. Now, Johnny Tompkins, I don't believe you were listening."

"Yes, I was, teacher."

"And do you know what a desert is?"

"Yes, teacher; a place where nothing will grow."

"That is correct. Now, give an instance of one of the world's deserts."

"Dad's head, teacher!" replied

a friend to tender skins

Many ill-made toilet soaps contain free alkali, a harsh chemical which tends to dry and injure the skin or hair. Resinol Soap contains absolutely no free alkali, and it is added the soothing, healing Resinol medication, which doctors have used for over 20 years in treating skin troubles. Thus it comforts tender skins, and helps nature clear the complexion and keep the hair rich, lustrous and free from dandruff. Sold at all druggists' and toilet counters.

Mother of Ten Children "Keeps Them All Well and Strong With Father John's Medicine"
